

Abstract

Skin care compositions comprising greater than 7% glycerine, a vitamin B₃ compound and a natural moisturising factor are provided. The skin care compositions of the present invention provide improved acute skin hydration in combination with increased skin barrier function repair that result in improved chronic skin hydration.